EPS probing separate Jasper Avenue deaths

Deemed suspicious.
 Homicide section assisting with both investigations

Edmonton police were kept busy Monday as they investigated two separate suspicious deaths near Jasper Avenue.

In the first incident, an 18-year-old man was found unconscious and bleeding from apparent stab wounds on 114th Street just north of Jasper Avenue around 1 a.m.

Police said it took officers less than two minutes to arrive after receiving several calls reporting a seriously injured man lying in the road. Officers believe the attack was not random. The victim was transported to hospital where he was pronounced dead.

The death can't officially be called a homicide until the medical examiner labels it one, said EPS spokesperson Clair Seyler. A large area remained cordoned off with police tape between Shoppers Drug Mart, Canadian Western Bank and an apartment building Monday morning as yellow evidence markers lay on the blood-stained road.

Police have released few details about Monday's second suspicious death, which happened in View Point Manor at 8328 Jasper Avenue.

Officers were called to the apartment building around 10:30 a.m., and investigators have yet to identify the gender of the victim.

If the stabbing death of the 18-year-old man is deemed a homicide, it would be the 10th of 2013 and the second in the neighbourhood of Oliver in four days.

A man was found dead near the corner of 111th Street and 99th Avenue in Oliver on Thursday evening.

Jarrett Campbell, president of the Oliver Community League, said he doesn't believe residents should feel unsafe in their neighbourhood.

Minister hears more worries over disability funding

There's been more concern voiced about the Alberta government's plan to cut about $42 million from certain programs for the developmentally disabled.

About 200 people turned out at a public forum in Calgary with Frank Oberle, associate minister of services for people with disabilities.

They criticized what they said was the province's lack of communication about cuts to community-access programs and questioned whether the government has thought through the changes.

Some parents wondered whether decision-makers understand the financial stress of living with a developmentally disabled child.

Oberle said the province will not cut services to people who need them.

Linda Wiebe told the minister the burden is being placed on parents.

"Physically, we as parents can't do it ourselves," she said at the meeting Monday. "We're already at the point where we are drained."

On Friday, 1,000 demonstrators rallied on the steps of the Alberta legislature to demand Premier Alison Redford reverse the planned reallocation of funds.

Funding for the developmentally disabled was actually increased in the March budget by $5 million to $691 million. But the government is restructuring how the money is allocated to focus more on clients and less on agencies that serve them.

Changes are supposed to go into effect July 1.

Plan to close schools sparks opposition

Reaction. Catholic board endorsing strategy to shutter four facilities, move students to new school

ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

Edmonton Catholic Schools is hoping plans to replace four older schools with a new one could be a model for the future, but parents believe it's a model for disaster.

The Catholic board put a replacement for St. Gabriel, St. Kevin, St. James and St. Bren-

Money

- The four existing schools have deferred maintenance costs of more than $22 million.

dan on its list of capital priorities last week. All four of those schools are in central southern Edmonton and are underutilized and decades old.

Lana Brenneis, school council chair at St. Gabriel, says closing the schools would send the wrong message to central communities.

"It would send a message to people in the inner suburbs that just because there is a school there, (it) does not mean it is going to remain there," she said.

All the schools have utilization rates below 50 per cent, but Brenneis says she is concerned that doesn't take into account the unique nature of older schools with wider halls and other non-instructional spaces.

Assistant Supt. Boris Radyo says the board shares those concerns, but it is bound by provincial targets. He says even if they could change the rules, the schools would still be underutilized.

"When you apply that to all the schools across the district, the cards fall the same way, which is that those schools are still the least utilized in the district," he said.

Because the schools are older, Radyo says their maintenance costs are up to 100 per cent higher than other schools.

Brenneis says she just wants the board to consider all the options, including leasing out space to daycares and other groups, as is done at St. Gabriel.

"The board is in a tough position, but I don't think that using a clear-cut method of school closures is the answer," she said.

Nalla. She likes ice cream and long walks in the park

Nalla is one of about 20 dogs available for adoption through Pit Bulls for Life. HEATHER MCINTYRE/METRO

Micah Nickerson got to know Nalla about a week ago.

"We went for ice cream on our first date. Ever since, we've been a cute couple," he said with a laugh.

Nalla is the six-year-old pit bull Nickerson is fostering while Pit Bulls for Life aims to find her a new home.

Back in April, Nalla was dragged behind a pickup truck after jumping out of the back of the vehicle. She severely injured her paws, which needed multiple surgeries and weeks of bandage changes, says veterinarian Dr. Milton Ness.

On Monday, Nalla, who was surrendered by her former owner, was on show at the City of Edmonton Animal Care and Control Centre. She will soon be up for adoption now that she is essentially fully recovered.

Application forms are online at pitbullsforlife.com.

But it will be at least two weeks until Nalla is available, says foster co-ordinator Allison Noseworthy.

"(There's been) a ton of interest, and that's why we are taking things really slow to make sure we find the best home for her."

Police spokesperson Clair Seyler says there will be no criminal charges as the truck incident was deemed unintentional, but Nalla's former owner will appear in court under the Animal Protection Act on June 21.

Babies best on backs: Study

Rest easy. Study shows no loss in motor skills, reduced SIDS cases

Whether they are crying all night or sleeping like angels, babies lying on their backs aren't losing any gross motor skills, according to a new University of Alberta study.

The study aimed to address concerns about the two-decade-old Back to Sleep campaign, which encouraged parents to put their children on their back to lower the risk of sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS).

Johanna Darrah, a professor in the faculty of rehabilitation medicine, compared infants from 20 years ago with infants today and found little difference on when babies took their first spin. "They rolled within a week of the same age of what they did 20 years ago," she said.

Darrah said having that data should help parents feel confident they are making the right choice.

"It shows that the Back to Sleep campaign hasn't affected gross motor development," she said.

She added the campaign has also dramatically reduced SIDS cases. "It has been very effective. It has decreased the prevalence of SIDS by about 50 per cent."

Virginia Quist said she puts her four-month-old son Logan on his back every night, and while she wasn't worried about his motor skills, she's happy research backs her up. "It is reassuring to have a study that shows it isn't affecting anything and that our baby is healthy," she said. RYAN TUMILTY/METRO

Eco week. Leave clippings on lawn to cut waste: City

Coun. Don Iveson mowed city hall's lawn on Monday to launch the fight against scrapping grass clippings in celebration of Environment Week.

The campaign, named Go Bagless, urges residents to take the collection bag off of their lawnmowers, something nearly 60 per cent of Edmontonians already do.

"It's important to do what Edmontonians have already been doing, which is working to lead the world in waste reduction," said Iveson.

In addition to its waste-management benefits, leaving mowed grass on lawns also helps save on utilities by cutting household water use in half and reducing fertilizer use by 25 percent, said Iveson.

"It helps the soil retain moisture and it helps fertilize the soil. Yes, you may have to cut it more often, but you'll have healthier grass overall," he said.

Coun. Iveson mowed the lawn at city hall to advocate "grass cycling." PATRICK NGUYEN/FOR METRO

About 40,000 tonnes of grass are still being collected each year in Edmonton, equivalent to the weight of 3,077 city buses.

Mayoral race. Candidate eyes surplus school sites

Frustration over the city's decisions on surplus school sites has driven an Edmonton man to run for mayor.

Curtis Penner, president of the Ermitskin Community League, announced his candidacy Monday, with a focus on the surplus school sites the city is looking to sell.

Penner said the city's public consultations about the sites made it seem they have already made their decision and it made him want to do something about it.

"Perhaps fighting city hall is not the answer, and replacing them is," he said.

Penner said he decided to jump straight to the mayor's race because he believes all Edmontonians are concerned about their green space.

"This is not an issue that is constrained to Ward 10; this is an issue that happens throughout the entire City of Edmonton," he said.

Penner said he won't be a one-issue candidate, but this motivated him to get involved.

He joins Coun. Kerry Diotte, who announced his candidacy last month. RYAN TUMILTY/METRO

Simple idea. Technology tackles oilsands emissions with straw, wood waste

A simple concept using straw or wood waste from the forestry and agricultural sectors might help cut greenhouse gas emissions and clean up water produced by Alberta's oilsands.

Lead researcher David Layzell from the University of Calgary said studies have shown that straw and wood can be turned into a biocarbon tailored for absorbing acids found in tailings ponds.

"It's actually a very simple idea. Many of us use charcoal filters or carbon filters on our tap water to take out odours that we don't like, or bad tastes

Turkey. White House calls on police and protesters to refrain from violence

The Obama administration voiced concern Monday over Turkey's crackdown on protesters and urged all sides to keep from violence.

Spokesman Jay Carney said all democracies have to work through issues but expects the U.S. ally to do so while respecting its citizens' rights.

Police in Turkey have used tear gas for a fourth day to disperse demonstrations that have spiraled into the country's biggest anti-government disturbances in years.

Secretary of State John Kerry, who has travelled to Turkey three times since becoming America's top diplomat, said the U.S. is following the situation closely and is troubled by reports of injuries and excessive force by police.

Earlier, Turkey's president defended the right of citizens to protest, in contrast to the dismissive stance of the prime minister.

took his own life in 2011 after being bullied for being openly gay.

Moore said the government is partnering with the Red Cross, which will train 2,400 youth between the ages of 13 and 17 who will deliver in-class workshops to other youth across Canada.

Hubley called the project "important and timely" in light of the recent suicides of Amanda Todd and Rehtaeh Parsons.

"Canadians such as my family have paid too high a price and want meaningful progress before other families must carry the burden of losing someone special like my boy, Jamie, who only wanted safer communities for everyone," said Hubley.

Suspect can't find lawyer who'll use Qur'anic defence

A terror suspect charged in an alleged plot to attack a VIA Rail passenger train is having difficulty finding a lawyer who will try convincing a court to judge him against the Qur'an.

Chiheb Esseghaier appeared in a Toronto court via video link on Monday to discuss his attempts to find legal aid representation — a process that has so far been unsuccessful due to the specific and unusual demands he has made.

"I want that the lawyer help me to change the reference of my case from the laws used by humans to the laws of the holy book," he told the court. "I cannot take a lawyer who is not able to fulfil my need."

When asked by the presiding justice of peace if he fully understood the proceedings, Esseghaier, who was wearing an orange jumpsuit and sported a full beard, said he did.

The rate of infant deaths associated with unsafe sleep environments hasn't changed despite increased awareness, according to a report released Monday.

Of the 131 infant deaths studied by Ontario's Office of the Chief Coroner last year, 37 per cent were found in unsafe environments, according to the report of the Paediatric Death Review Committee and Deaths Under Five Committee.

The children died with no findings on autopsy, but were in an unsafe sleep environment, said Dr. Dirk Huyer, the committee's chairman.

"What we don't know is whether that directly caused the death, or whether it's specifically associated with it," he said. "But we do know ... epidemiologically and through study that children have a greater risk of dying in unsafe sleeping environments."

Soccer turban ban. Sikhs 'can play in their backyard'

The Quebec Soccer Federation says if Sikh kids want to play soccer while wearing a turban, they can play in their own yard.

Brigitte Frot, the director general of the federation, was asked Monday what she would tell a boy in a turban who shows up to play soccer.

"They can play in their backyard, but not with official referees, not in the official rules of soccer," Frot replied.

Quebec referees began cracking down on the religious headgear in the last year. The weekend decision to uphold the ban was upheld despite a directive from the Canadian Soccer Association in April calling for provincial associations to allow them.

Quebec is the only province that has balked at allowing turbans on the pitch. An estimated 100 to 200 children are left unable to play as a result.

Teen shot outside tent mistaken for bear

Manitoba. Four friends were sleeping at campsite on first night in the wilderness

A teenager who was mistaken for a bear outside a tent has been shot and killed in a remote area of northeastern Manitoba by a fellow camper.

RCMP Sgt. Line Karpish said four friends were camping at Namay Falls on Sunday, when one of them was woken up at 4 a.m. by a noise. He thought it was a bear and that it was close to the tent.

The 22-year-old fired a shot, only to discover he had hit one of his camping buddies.

"It is certainly a very sad reminder of the great responsibility that comes with handling firearms."

The four friends had been dropped into their campsite by helicopter and were just beginning a canoe trip down the Bloodvein River, Karpish said. The tragic shooting occurred during their first night in the wilderness.

Sadly, Karpish said it's not that unusual for people to be mistaken for wildlife and get shot accidentally.

"These people were out in the middle of nowhere and there are bears out there and cougars. There may be other types of wildlife that may pose a threat," she said. "In this case, the young man believed it was a bear and fired the gun."

The victim is a 17-year-old from Steinbach, Man., Karpish said. Police will not be releasing his name.

An autopsy is scheduled in Winnipeg. RCMP are continuing to investigate, but Karpish said no charges have been laid. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cat caught while on clandestine mission in Russia

This may be the first time inmates at a Russian prison have used a cat as an accomplice.

Guards patrolling a prison colony in Russia's north saw a cat on the fence that seemed to be carrying something. After a closer look, they found a few cellphones and chargers taped to its belly.

The prison service said Monday this happened on Friday at the Penal Colony No. 1 near the city of Syktyvkar, 1,000 kilometres northeast of Moscow.

Climate change brings spring early, but no birds

New research suggests that climate change is starting to keep early birds from getting the worms. York University scientist Kevin Fraser says that while last year's spring arrived earlier than ever, migratory birds such as purple martins didn't.

That means the birds weren't around when food — such as newly hatched insects — was most available.

Fraser says that's likely to damage the birds' ability to breed.

Spanish police are trying to determine whether bones found in garbage bags in the gym of a martial-arts instructor belong to multiple crime victims.

Police in the northern city of Bilbao discovered the bones Monday after they said witnesses saw Juan Carlos Aguilar, 47, drag a woman inside the gym by the hair. Officers found her inside, brutally beaten.

Forensic testing is under way to determine how many people the bones belonged to and how they died. Searches were also happening at Aguilar's home and in a nearby river.

CRTC cracks the dreaded 3-year cellphone contract

Wireless code. Telecom regulator's new national standards let customers cancel agreements after 2 years without penalties

Cellphone customers will be able to walk away from their contracts after two years without any early-cancellation penalties under a set of new rules unveiled Monday by the CRTC.

But the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission didn't go as far as an outright ban on the controversial three-year contracts that are so widely hated by many Canadians.

Instead, customers will only have to pay the remaining value of the device subsidy if they opt out of their contracts after two years. That means if a customer bought a $600 phone for $99 on a three-year plan, they only have to pay the remaining balance on the device itself to get

In the lead-up to public hearings held this year on the new wireless code, the CRTC said it heard a lot of angry comments about three-year contracts. GETTY IMAGES FILE out of the contract early.

"We didn't focus on the length of the contract, we focused on the economic relationship," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in an interview.

"So, in effect, it's equivalent to those asking for a ban of a three-year contract without us actually banning three-year contracts, because what we're saying is the contract's amortization period can only be for a maximum period of 24 months."

In the lead-up to public hearings held earlier this year, the CRTC said it heard a lot of angry comments about three-year contracts. "What we were concerned about was ensuring that there was a dynamic marketplace; that is, that people didn't feel entrapped in their contracts when they want to maybe use the offer of a new entrant or a competitor across the street," Blais said.

The code, which all service providers in Canada will have to abide by, will apply to new wireless contracts beginning Dec. 2. As part of the new code, the CRTC is also capping extra data charges at $50 per month and international data roaming charges at $100 per month to avoid huge, surprise bills.

Retail. Walmart aims to perk up the produce aisle

Walmart has announced steps to improve the quality of its fresh fruits and vegetables.

The retailer said Monday it is making more changes in its operations, training and sourcing as it looks to increase sales of bananas, lettuce and other produce and instill more confidence among shoppers looking for healthier choices.

Changes include delivering produce from farms to store shelves more quickly by purchasing fruits and vegetables directly from local growers. It's also conducting independent weekly checks of the produce aisles at 3,400 U.S. stores, and has launched a produce training program to teach employees how to better handle fruits and vegetables.

PUTTING THE 'PRO' IN PROM

It's prom season.

I haven't set foot in a high school in almost a decade and yet I can't help but notice the increasing buzz of excitement in the air as teenagers across the country anticipate their iconic end-of-year dance.

Prom is an important rite of passage for young adults and a climactic moment in everybody's high school career—at least according to every single teen movie ever made.

When it comes to coming-of-age stories, corsages tend to get much more screen time than diplomas.

For high school seniors, prom night is essentially a smaller, less expensive version of a wedding reception.

There's the big dress, the cheesy DJ, the posed photos and the overwhelming expectations that are bound to leave you disappointed. These semi-formals have become so much like weddings that it's not even enough to just go to prom any-

SHE SAYS
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

more. You have to be "promposed" to.

While it might have been good enough in the past to simply corner your crush by their locker after class and ask them to the dance, today's teens are planning elaborate romantic gestures in order to secure a date to prom.

A quick YouTube search shows about 150,000 videos claiming to be the "Greatest Promposal EVER."

From subtle messages scrawled on coffee cups to over-the-top flash mobs set to Justin Bieber's greatest hits, adolescent boys and girls are pulling out all the stops to pop the question to their would-be prom date. Stunts might range from obnoxiously outrageous to sweetly sentimental but they do have one thing in common—every moment is documented thoroughly on social media.

This is the Tumblr generation after all; did it even really happen if no one was there to Instagram it?

Of course, it's only worth the effort and embarrassment if you're guaranteed to get the yes, which is why most promposals are between high school sweethearts who are coupled up already.

With teenagers' penchant for drama and insatiable appetite for attention, it's hardly surprising that a simple question has evolved into its own engagement-like ritual. But isn't it all maybe a bit too much?

The pressure to find a prom date is bad enough; these new expectations involving intensely passionate (and public) campaigns are an additional level of stress that senior students don't really need—especially around exam time.

Personally, I'm thankful that none of these shenanigans existed in my high school days.

I'm sure I would have spent weeks scrolling through #PROMPOSAL content alone in my bedroom and feeling disappointed that no one wanted to fill the school cafeteria with helium balloons for me.

Nice to moss, er, I mean, meet you

Spanish man has found the ground

They look like do-it-yourself Halloween costumes but these moss-made outfits are in fact a part of a Spanish tradition dating back to the 12th century. The Procession of the Hombres de Musgo in the town of Bejar originates from a time when Christians reconquered the town from Muslim guards by camouflaging themselves in moss.

Legend has it that a group of Christian men used moss, which grows in abundance there thanks to the region's moist climate, as material for outfit to frighten Muslim guards.

At night, the moss-covered men slipped through the town gates and startled the guards, who thought the men were monsters. Fearing for their lives, the Muslim rulers fled the town forever. METRO

Finding the meaning of life on death row

The Killing. Peter Sarsgaard's role as a sinister inmate who killed his wife has him thinking about the morality and ethics of the death penalty

MATTHEW PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

The third season of AMC's crime procedural The Killing, which premiered Sunday, has a new storyline and some new cast members. Among the neophytes is Peter Sarsgaard, a talented actor who's been among the best things in Boys Don't Cry, Garden State, Shattered Glass and An Education. In his first season-long television stint — which he was still shooting when we talked — Sarsgaard plays Ray Seward, a sinister death row inmate who killed his wife.

What are the challenges of playing a death row inmate?

So much of my story takes place in the same spot. In a lot of movies, there's the car chase, the scene at breakfast, the sex scene. This is about always going to the same cell. You have to find ways of doing a different dance on the same dance floor.

Were those challenges what drew you to The Killing?

Those, and also because the issues interested me. I'm very much against the death penalty. It's very easy to do a piece about someone who's been railroaded by the system who's innocent. If you don't believe in the death penalty, you have to take an extreme circumstance — someone who's indefensible — to see if it still applies. Otherwise, the death penalty applies in some cases.

What made you want to work on TV?

Just this show. I always really liked this show. I thought this material was better than some of the film stuff I was being offered. It seemed

Peter Sarsgaard has a handful of great films under his belt and now he's trying his hand at TV. HANDOUT there was more of a role there.

There's much less of a fear these days for serious actors to do TV.

So many of my favourite actors are on television. So, if you want to act with them you have to be on television.

How is TV acting different from stage or film acting?

It's really fast. And because you don't know the show as well as the show runners or the writers, you're more at their mercy. On a film you'll know the whole story, and you'll go up to the director and say, "Oh, this doesn't seem right to me, this entire scene." And we'll work on it or they'll tell me to shut the f—up. There's more interaction about content. But on TV, with a series like this, you just have to trust them.

DVD reviews

A Good Day to Die Hard

Director. John Moore
Stars. Bruce Willis, Jai Courtney

The Die Hard series sells the lone wolf concept — Willis vs. global terrorists — yet deep down, it's really about family reunification. Good thing, too, because the violence gets old fast. The thump-thump-thump of the heart may be hard to discern behind the rat-tat-tat of machine gun fire, but the love has always been there. Die Hards 1-3 sought to return cowboy cop John McClane (Bruce Willis) to the shaky embrace of his wife (Bonnie Bedelia); the fourth film, Live Free or Die Hard, had McClane rescuing his adult daughter (Mary Elizabeth Winstead). Now comes chapter five, A Good Day to Die Hard. It moves the divorced and retired McClane to Moscow while reuniting him with his son Jack (Jai Courtney of TV's Spartacus: Blood and Sand). Willis and Courtney make a strong match, believable both as fractious family members and also as sarcastic adversaries forced by circumstances to work together. The family that yippee-ki-yays together, stays together.

Escape to Planet Earth

Director. Cal Brunker
Stars. Brendan Fraser, Rob Corddry

This animated sci-fi chuckler about aliens trapped on Planet Earth somehow manages to elude tedium, despite being a revisionist rip of rival 'toons. It's got a lead character (Brendan Fraser) much like Buzz Lightyear from Toy Story, who gets into all kinds of intergalactic mischief with beasties and humanoids resembling the inhabitants of Monsters vs. Aliens, Monsters, Inc., The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy and many other similar entertainments. The central premise isn't terribly new, either, with everyone from E.T. to TV's Alf and Mork & Mindy having already gone down this interstellar path.

Will to live, happily: Arnett pumping some iron post-divorce

Arrested Development star Will Arnett found a very healthy and productive way to deal with his split from ex-wife Amy Poehler: hitting the gym. "If going to the gym obsessively for eight, nine months was my way of dealing, then let that be my worst problem," Arnett tells Details magazine. guidebooks out there. All people have been doing since the dawn of time is trying to figure out how to live this life and be happy. I'm no different." As looking for romance post-divorce, Arnett says he's not quite ready. "I'm not officially dating," he says. "I don't know what you do. Do you put out an announcement in the trades? 'I'm dating!' It all seems very scary to me, to be honest."

Jesse James' daughter, Chandler James, 18, checked into rehab in April to battle her addiction to crystal meth. RadarOnline.com revealed yesterday. The site published troubling photos and video of Chandler, 18, inhaling crystal meth off of aluminum foil.

"It is an open secret here in Austin that Chandler and her friends party hard and get wired," said the "friend" who sold the video to Radar. "It was getting pretty out of hand. If she didn't get help, who knows what could have happened." Chandler also apparently has a problem with "huffing."

James confirmed the news to Radar: "My daughter spent the month of April in a treatment facility getting help for addiction," James told RadarOnline.com, via email.

"She is out now and in recovery, actively participating in a 12-step AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) program."

Hard to counsel a family without the folks

Lindsay Lohan was hoping to get some family counselling in while under treatment at the Betty Ford Center, but it looks like that plan is off since neither her mother, Dina, or her father, Michael, could make it to the planned session over the weekend, according to Radar Online. "I didn't want a confrontation

Don't sip your cocktail using a straw

Bet that poolside cocktail was really refreshing and delicious. And that long straw meant you didn't even have to lift your head from the sun lounger in order to take a sip. "Big mistake!" says gastroenterologist Dr. Roshini Raj. "Drinking out of a straw causes you to swallow more air, which can lead to gas and bloating."

De-clog your digestive track

Eating too many nuts and bananas can cause constipation, says Raj. "Nuts are good for you in many ways (they're a rich source of plant protein and omega-3 fatty acids) but the gelatinous form that they take when digested means they tend to stick together and get stuck ... Bananas, especially when unripe, are full of starch, which has been shown to slow down digestion. If you suffer from constipation, stick to eating one a week," she adds.

Work your deep abdominals

"Do 30 minutes worth of cardio exercises, five days a week. This can be anything from jogging and spinning, to treadmill exercises," recommends Michele Olson, exercise physiologist at Auburn University in Montgomery. "You also want to be doing push-ups and planks because your abs fire strongly during these moves in order to stabilize your back. Do two reps of 10 push-ups followed by 10 side planks to each side."

Stay away foods that cause flatulence

Some foods produce more gas than others, making you feel full and bloated.

"Complex carbohydrates, found in some vegetables, including broccoli and cauliflower can cause gas. These foods contain sugars that are passed undigested into the colon where they are broken down by bacteria producing gas as a by-product. ... And if you're in the habit of stirring some Sweet'N Low into your morning coffee, beware. Artificial sweeteners can cause gas to get trapped in your belly," Michele Olson, exercise physiologist at Auburn University in Montgomery, said.

Never, ever skip meals

If you think that skipping meals, taking laxatives or stopping eating altogether is going to do the trick, then think again.

"All this will do is cause you to lose water and electrolytes, leading to dehydration. This then prompts your body to retain water, meaning you'll just pack back on whatever water weight you lost," says Raj.

Douglas draws attention to HPV risks

Health. The actor said that HPV, transmitted via cunnilingus, could cause throat cancer, which he was diagnosed with in 2010

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
Metro World News

Metro spoke to Dr. Julie Sharp, senior science communications manager at Cancer Research UK, about the link between oral sex and cancer.

What exactly is HPV?

"It's a virus that's normally transferred through actual physical contact (skin-to-skin or sex). Although it is, in most cases symptomless, it can cause things such as genital warts. HPV is very common. Eight out of 10 people will be infected with it at some point in their life even though in most cases, they won't know anything about it."

How can HPV cause cancer?
"There are hundreds of different types of HPV and around a dozen of them can increase

In an interview with the Guardian newspaper, Michael Douglas said that oral sex can cause throat cancer. GETTY IMAGES the risk of cancer. They're more associated with cervical and genital cancer but can be linked to certain types of mouth and throat cancer, through things such as oral sex. HPV infections most commonly occur to the fingers, hands, mouth and genitals and can cause DNA damage in the cells. If it's going to cause cancer it can be that you are exposed to a high risk form of HPV just once, but obviously, the more sexual partners you have, the more you're exposed to different types of HPV, increasing your risk of contracting one of the forms linked to cancer."

Michael Douglas has been married to actress Catherine Zeta Jones for 12 years. Is it possible that he caught the HPV before their relationship began — some 15 to 20 years ago?

"Yes. And that's why these cancers are often diagnosed in older people, who might not even have been sexually active recently. So yes, it might have been a previous infection. Cancer doesn't just develop overnight. You might have had an infection that led to a cell change and then over the

Reducing risk

So should people stop having oral sex if they want to reduce their risk of getting cancer?

- Quote. "With oral cancer, the main risk factors are still alcohol and smoking. There are hundreds of different HPV infections and only occasionally will someone be exposed to one that's going to increase their risk of cancer. These cancers are very treatable and anything in the mouth and the throat, it's easier to spot the symptoms. The main thing is for people to be aware and to get checked out if they've got things like ulcers, sores or white patches that don't go away, difficulty with speech or swallowing and any kind of discomfort. Even dentists are trained to look for any unusual patches in the mouth."

first place, it's one of the best cures. Is this true?

"I don't know what he's alluding to there. That doesn't have any basis in science or research. I'm also not sure how he's so certain that his cancer is linked to HPV. You can test for HPV, but I don't know if you can see if someone had an infection in the past. It's more likely that it was a combination of things. More than three quarters of oral cancers in men and more than half in women are caused by smoking. Alcohol also plays a big part. So they're all risk factors."

Anti-cancer turmeric trumps bread crumbs in pan-fried fish

This recipe replaces traditional bread crumbs with turmeric as a coating for pan-fried fish.

1. Beat egg in a shallow bowl with 1 tbsp of water.

2. Mix turmeric, whole-wheat flour, sea salt and white pepper in a separate bowl.

3. Dredge fish in egg and then set into turmeric-flour mixture, turning to coat.

4. Warm a large skillet over

Ingredients

- 1 egg
- 1 tbsp water
- 2 tbsp turmeric (or curry powder)
- 2 tbsp whole-wheat flour
- 1/4 tsp sea salt
- 1/4 tsp white pepper
- 1 lb catfish fillets
- 1 tbsp butter
- 1 tbsp grapeseed oil

This recipe serves four. SUBMITTED medium-high heat and add butter and oil. Quickly add the coated fish.

5. Cook for 2-3 minutes and turn once to cook through for 2-3 more minutes.

6. Set fish onto paper towel to absorb any excess fat. THERESA ALBERT/MYFRIENDINFOOD.COM

Tough-guy actor on his tough-love parenting book

Q&A. Sopranos regular Steve Schirripa talks being a strict, loving, daddy, but one who's wary of his 'cunning' teenage daughters

ALEXANDRA CAVALLO
Metro World News in New York City

On The Sopranos, Steve Schirripa played a hotheaded, loud-mouthed guy. As a father, he's pretty much that same guy. He wrote Big Daddy Rules as a love letter to his two daughters.

"I guess I don't always tell them how I feel," he says. "I yell a lot. I'm pretty strict, and also I've got a lot of opinions, and I wanted to put them all together in a book."

What are the rules?
The first rule is, I make the rules. I'm your father, not your friend. But I'm the best friend you're ever going to have because nobody is going to care about you the way I care about you. The four greatest words in the world are "because I said so." That's why you can't go to the party where they're serving beer. Parents don't want to tell their kids "no" anymore.

What's the hardest part about raising girls?

A boy, you give them a ball, you give them a Lego, they're fascinated. Girls are smart, they're cunning, they're calculating. They bat their eyelashes, they manipulate you.

Did you care whether you had a boy or a girl?

It didn't matter to me, as long as they were healthy. It was scary though, when my wife got pregnant. I was not prepared. I was a guy that went out a lot. I worked nights; I was living in Las Vegas. I thought my world would come to a stop.

What's an uncomfortable situation, as a dad?

My daughter dated a boy when she was 16, and I think I made a mistake there. I don't think she was emotionally ready. I was reluctant. I would not make that mistake again.

Do you really think you could have stopped her?

I hear what you're saying. I can't control everything they do, and I don't try to, but I want to be present whether I'm there or not. I want them to think, "What would my dad think about this decision I'm about to make?"

Were you strict with letting them watch TV?

I am still! I hate that reality crap. I saw them one day watching The Jersey Shore whole and grate it yourself for a fresher, more potent punch.

- Sprinkle some pure turmeric on a kitchen cut to stop the bleeding in its tracks.

- Add it to any tomato-based sauce, you won't taste or see it but it will boost the potency.

- Add to spice cakes or cookies.

- Stir into dips.

- Consume curries more often.

- Mix with water and use as a scrub on sensitive skin.

- Take as a supplement.

and I said I never want to see that again, ever. It's complete garbage. You think this is for real?

What's your best advice for a new dad?

I think the best thing is to be present. Get in there; get your hands dirty. Be involved. You know, in every movie, every TV show, the dad's an idiot. Don't be an idiot. Take charge, change a diaper, help.

Are you getting good investment advice?

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

I'm mad as hell and ready to kick someone. Actually, I am ready to kick the advisor of a reader named Martin.

Martin is 59, on a fixed income and has little knowledge about investments. Nonetheless, he ended up with a $150,000 investment loan, which the advisor then used to purchase seven segregated mutual funds from two different insurance companies.

Seg funds are like mutual funds with capital guarantees of anywhere from 60 to 100 per cent, with 75 per cent being fairly standard. You must hold them for 10 long years before the guarantee can be activated.

Bear in mind that the guarantee does not cover any growth in the investments, only the money initially invested.

Interestingly, there's no 10-year period since 1950 when the Canadian markets have been negative. Even after the financial crash of 2008/2009

Borrowing to invest is a risky strategy. ISTOCK IMAGES stocks righted themselves by early 2013. The worst period for the U.S. market was 2000 to 2010 with a minus 3 per cent return for the Dow Jones.

Specific investments, however, including any given mutual fund, can be a 10-year pooh. But if you are only getting a 75 per cent capital guarantee and paying for it through elevated mutual fund fees for 10 years, you have to have one terrible fund plus a bad market in order for the guarantee to be worthwhile.

Back to Martin. Not including borrowing costs, his funds are worth $17,000 less than he paid for them in 2002. Not only that but he has considerable duplication in his holdings with two each of balanced, Canadian and global equity funds.

This advisor also persuaded Martin to buy shares of Research in Motion. He's actually made a few dollars here but this was a pure gamble. Borrowing to invest is a risky strategy even if the investments are sound. Buying a single, volatile stock such as RIM is also hugely risky.

Martin's best course of action is to make a complaint to the firm first. His Know Your Client form should indicate level of knowledge and risk tolerance. I'm betting he indicated both were low. Two other complaint venues are the Investment Industry Regulatory Organization of Canada (IIROC) and the office of the Banking and Investment Ombudsman.

Martin's portfolio does not match his situation or temperament and I am hoping he gets some compensation for this terrible advice.

Hold the phone: there's a new way to pay for your coffee

Whether it's buying morning coffee, getting a haircut or purchasing movie tickets, consumers want greater flexibility in paying for goods and services.

The number of credit and debit card transactions continues to increase, however payment with a physical card may soon be a thing of the past. In a connected world where smartphone and tablet usage continues to rise, this presents a shift in the way traditional payments are being accepted.

According to Pivotal Payments, one of Canada's leading payment processing companies, businesses both big and small can have a competitive edge by offering mobile payment options that are flexible and cater to their customers' changing needs.

"We've seen rapid growth of mobile payment applications due to the solution's affordability, security and universality," said Shaun McDonald, vice president of product and project management at Pivotal

The physical card may soon be a thing of the past with more people using mobile wallets. ISTOCK IMAGES

Payments. "Mobile payments allow merchants traditionally unwilling to accept credit cards to expand their payment options."

With the use of a small card reader, merchants owning an iPhone, Android or BlackBerry device can easily accept credit cards at a relatively low cost. Some see this as a stop-gap between the use of physical credit cards and mobile wallets.

In the case of mobile wallets, a consumer's own smartphone becomes the payment source, with an application that stores their credit card information.

As consumer behaviour evolves and accepts these new technologies, it will usher in a new era of payment processing where an actual credit card may not necessarily be required to make what we now consider a credit card purchase.

Pitt of despair: Pens plummet at home

NHL playoffs. Feisty Bruins winger Marchand leads Boston's march past Penguins in Game 2

Boston strong indeed.

Brad Marchand scored twice during a four-goal first period and the Boston Bruins routed the Pittsburgh Penguins 6-1 in Game 2 of the Eastern Conference final on Monday night.

David Krejci, Nathan Horton, Patrice Bergeron and Johnny Boychuk also scored for Boston, which hardly broke a sweat while going up 2-0 in the best-of-seven series. Tuukka Rask kept Sidney Crosby and the rest of the NHL's top offence in check once again, stopping 26 shots.

Game 3 is Wednesday night in Boston.

Brandon Sutter netted

Pittsburgh's lone goal. Tomas Vokoun gave up three first-period goals on 12 shots before being replaced by Marc-Andre Fleury.

The move did little to blunt the momentum in what has quickly become a one-sided series. Boston held Pittsburgh's top-ranked power play scoreless for the second straight game, and the Bruins looked like the team marked as the Stanley Cup favourites, not the star-laden Penguins.

Boston insisted it was fortunate to escape Game 1 with a 3-0 victory, saying a couple of bounces could have changed the course of the game dramatically.

The Penguins blamed their choppy play, including a rare fight by Evgeni Malkin, on an eight-day layoff, stressing there was no need to panic.

Might be time to start now.

The last 16 teams to go up 2-0 in the conference finals have advanced to the Cup finals. The Penguins managed to escape a 2-0 hole against the Bruins in 1991 on their way to the franchise's first championship.

These days Mario Lemieux is relegated to watching from the owner's box. At the moment, the view isn't pretty.
